New BlueParrott® Bluetooth headset provides unsurpassed noise cancellation AND 16+ hours of talk time!

Rollinsford, NH. February 4, 2009 - VXI Corporation, the leading provider of noise-canceling professional grade headsets announces the newest addition to its popular BlueParrott® Bluetooth headset product line. The new B250-XT headset incorporates Xtreme Noise Suppression™ technology which knocks out the deafening sound of an 18-wheeler engine, heavy equipment, power tools, wind and road noise and much more.

The B250-XT further improves the communications experience for serious phone users with 16+ hours talk time (the longest in the industry) and a functional range of up to 66 feet --twice the distance of most other Bluetooth headsets. The full range of volume adjustments makes the B250-XT ideal for use in noisy environments or for those who have either experienced some hearing loss or who wear hearing aids. At the same time, the B250-XT's hearing protection technology guards users from sudden sound spikes. The durable yet lightweight B250-XT utilizes the same comfortable over-the-head wearing style that is preferred by those who use headsets for extended periods.

"VXI has been the leader in providing best-in-class headset solutions for high noise environments. Now, users of our products can enjoy our superior noise cancellation technology all day without interruption for recharging", said Lisa Keslar, Director of Marketing, VXI Corporation.
