New Wired headsets join VXI's Roadwarrior family of cell phone headsets for truck drivers

Rollinsford, NH – October 11, 2006 – VXI Corporation has introduced two new products into their Roadwarrior™ family of cellular phone headsets for truck drivers: The CP100-TK and CP150-TK wired headsets. Like the BlueParrott® Roadwarrior™ B150-TK wireless headset, each of these new headsets is specifically designed to handle the challenges faced by truck drivers using cell phones. Each headset includes a noise-canceling microphone that effectively blocks road and engine noise. Each headset model incorporates longwearing comfort and the stability of over-the-head styling. “The BlueParrott Roadwarrior B150-TK wireless headset was our first product specifically designed for truck drivers to give them greater comfort and greater freedom of movement by letting them be completely hands free. Now we have included wired solutions for drivers who want a hands free advantage, but don't own a Bluetooth cell phone. The key feature is the unsurpassed microphone performance giving them professional sounding calls free from the distraction of background noise. Now drivers won't need to yell to be heard over the engine when fueling. Our headsets are ergonomically designed to fit comfortably and securely on your head. The CP100-TK is a professional grade, feature rich wired headset and the CP150-TK is a entry level wired solution,” said Lisa Keslar, Director of Marketing, VXI Corporation.

The Roadwarrior CP150-TK and CP100-TK headsets are offered at a highly competitive suggested retail price of $19.99 and $69.99 respectively. The CP100-TK is backed by an industry-leading two-year warranty.
