

BlueParrott M300-XT SE

Can I replace the battery in my headset?

The batteries in our headsets currently in production are not intended to be user replaceable. They all use lithium-ion type batteries, which are designed to have an extended service life of several years. If you think your headset is experiencing power related issues, it may be something other than the battery. Contact our Technical Support Team for more assistance.