

BlueParrott B250-XTS

Does my BlueParrott headset pair with a computer/unsupported device?

Some users may have success pairing a BlueParrott headset with a computer, television, video game console, or other unsupported device. However, the full functionality of the BlueParrott headset may not be available. For example, you may be able to send and receive audio, but the buttons on the headset may not work for music controls the way they would with a smartphone.

Because your BlueParrott headset is optimized for use with a mobile device such as a smartphone or tablet, we do not recommend you pair your device directly with any unsupported device. BlueParrott does not guarantee device performance or provide support if problems result from this type of connection.